Question

In line with the six

functions of pastoral care and knowing what was happening at the Corinthian Church, develop and share a pastoral care intervention that would suit a church like that. How would you use the "team concept" of pastoral care to reduce challenges at the Corinthian church?

- 2) From the video on listening, discuss ways in which listening can be healing, what insights did you get from the video that will transform and improve the way you listen in your pastoral care ministry? How does effective listening transform the ministry of pastoral care and how can you strengthen the ministry of listening in your congregation?
- 3) Applying moral injury care practices write a strategy for your pastoral care team explaining moral injury, including what it is, why it must be addressed, and its symptoms. Discuss possible intervention activities with a recent case you attended. A 23-year-old student visited your office reporting sleep problems and nightmares. She is a youth member at your church. She reported having been abandoned with her parents when she was four years and having been sexually abused by a stranger on her way from school. Of late she has been going through abusive romantic relationships. As a pastor how can you in this situation. In your discussion, identify the spiritual and psychological aspects of moral injury and healing.
